Researcher Training and Development Sessions for 2023

Summary

In 2023, the Training, Development and Communication team in Research Development and Support have offered 102 information sessions and development workshops to researchers and research support staff at Flinders University.

From the Flinders community, 2409 people attended the research training and development sessions in 2023. Our actual attendance numbers for the year are larger ($n = 2467$) because we allowed external researchers to join select sessions (e.g., Open Research sessions; ARC Outreach sessions, etc.). Of the Flinders 2409 attendees, 844 were unique attendees, demonstrating that a large number of people from the Flinders research community are engaging in our research training and development program.

The number of attendees at our sessions varied from 1 in a hands-on ethics workshop to 80 in a research grant writing workshop. The mean number of attendees at our sessions was 24 with a median of 19.

In this report, we first break down our enrolments by College and portfolio. We then explore the topics of the sessions in more detail. We provide an overview of the number of sessions and number of attendees by theme, and then report the number of attendees in each session organised by theme.

Number of Attendees by College and Portfolio

Figure 1 illustrates how many people attended these sessions across the Colleges and portfolios. By far, the largest number of attendees were in the College of Medicine and Public Health, which is representative of the large number of researchers in that College.

Most of the professional staff who attended our training and development sessions were from the Portfolio of the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Research). We collapsed all other portfolios in the University into a single "Other portfolios" category because of the large number of portfolios that our registrants represent (including Library, Information and Digital Services, as well as people who are not aligned with any portfolio in the iEnrol system).

Overall, across all Colleges and portfolios, the average attendance rate for 2023 was 70.11%.

Figure 2 illustrates the unique number of attendees across the Colleges and portfolios. The College of Medicine and Public Health also had the most unique attendees.

Overview of Research Training and Development Topics

Next, we explore the topics of the sessions in more detail. Table 1 shows the number of sessions and attendees by theme. The largest number of sessions offered was in the 'Fund and Apply' theme, demonstrating Flinders University's commitment to supporting researchers to attract research funding. The fact that this theme also had the largest number of attendees is evidence that the research community values these training and development opportunities.

These numbers reflect the total number of attendees, most of whom are from Flinders ($n =$).
